

Sponge Pants Blue

The sponge pants game: a hilariously funny hexathlon event

A hilarious, unique and essential part of a hexathlon, or other games event. Whether it's a children's party, a town event, neighbourhood get together, or an event to inspire a company team to work (more) closely together: the sponge pants game is a regular part of such a party or teambuilding event. It is suitable for young and old alike. On the back of the enormous pants sponges are attached with which the participants have to 'drain' a water tank on one side of the course, and then 'squeeze out' the water into a water tank on the other side. May the best player win! Please note: the price is per piece!

Sponge pants on, all set: go!

This simple water transport game is a hexathlon essential and simple to organise as well, because it is very easy to set up. All that is needed is a proper course with a full water tank on one end, and an empty one on the other. When participants have put on their pants they are all set to go!
